MEAT INSPECTION BILL

Agrarians Making Victors Attacks on the American Hog.

AMERICAN PACKING HOUSES CONDEMNED

Testimony Before the War Investi guttng Commission Rehashed. America May Retaliate.

(Copyright, 1809, by Associated Press.) Berlin, April 22. - The meat inspection bill in the reichstag and the midland canal bill in the diet have engrossed attention this week. The agrarians and reactionists oppose both measures and the ultimate fate of the bills will be interpreted as evidence of the fighting strength of the parties.

The canal bill occupied more time in the diet than did the mest inspection bill, but In the reichstag the first reading of the latter required two days, while the former took five days. Both bills have gone to special committees, where they will probably be much altered, possibly more than acceptable to the government, in which case they may be withdrawn.

The ranks of the opponents of the bill were attempthened this week by the accossion of Baron Stumm, also called the local coal king and formerly bosom friend of Emperor William, a fact which is much of Emperor William, a fact which is much commented upon, in view of his majersty predilection for the project. The government thus far does not fear the entire Initure of either measure.

Regarding the meat inspection bill, which more directly touches American interests, there were many interesting features in the reichstag debate. The agrarians made a point of directing their remarks at Prof. Stiles, the scientific attached the United Stales embassy, who was marks at Prof. Stiles, the scientific attaches of the United States embassy, who was present during the whole debate, but who has now started for home on account of family matters. Trichinosis was discussed by the speakers and the charge made that American pork is frequently affected by trichinosos which until a year age was constantly reflerated in the press, releasing and lower house. It was notable that tag and lower house. It was notable that the debate was practically a repetition of statements made to the United States army board investigating committee with the worst evidence and bitterest construction of all sorts of American press comment. The reputation of leading American packing houses was torn to shreds by quotations from American publications which were read. It may be assumed that this will be the line of argument followed by opponents of the bill for the comment the press this week, when in sympathy the agrarians, almost entirely con-tra reliteration of the charge which disp put tersely that "this American britch Germans are expected to eat. Vri found by the highest American acre on commission, unhealthful and cenfly to America's own army of

of the question that the bill uch shape and it is merely o how much it can be altered ing unacceptable to the govopponents wish above all changes; "The abolishing provision making a double and on the caulie.

Examplesory, even on cattle are meat inspection as domestic purposes. The matter of inspection as domestic matter of inspection. To take on of the provisions of the bill hands of the bull clindingly in the bill, in order, peaker said, to remove it from the stic dickering of the foreign countries. iomatic dickering of the foreign coun-times."

If its opponents accomplish this, sa seems to be likely, the bill will be unacceptable to the government and will undoubtedly lead to a tariff war with the United States.

The above statements are the results of the inquiry made on the subject by the correspondent of the Associated Press. An American exporter, who is in the con-fidence of the Washington administration, and who is now here, said bluntly Germany passes a law requiring, in addition to the American credentials of the health of our meat exporte, which are as readable as the German certificates, double inspection after the arrival of the meat here, it will be tantamount to a prohibition against American meat and such action will doubtless be answered by retaliation on German exports to the United States. Every bottle of German, wine will be opened and its hygienic quality tested."

A significant point of the speech of the minister of the interfor was that the bill cas intended by the government as a tamastery measure until Germany produces enough meat for their own people, which, it is believed, will not take long.

The correspondent here of the Associated Press loarns from the best sources that while the state department at Washington as from time to time instructed the has from time to time instructed the United States ambassador to present American views of the differences which have arisen on the subject of "most favored pations" clause in the commercial treaties Instructions have not been received at the Berlin embassy looking to the negotiat for an entirely new reciprocity treasy.
